MISSION:

The project's goal addresses the global need for openness, cultural exchange and to help gain the mutual respect and cooperation necessary for World Peace. By documenting people and places the project reminds us that in our differences we share similar love, hopes and dreams. The Peace Caravan informs and inspires others, through cultural understanding, tolerance, acceptance. and the notion that we shouldn't fear one another.

Dead Sea, Jordan

Hotan, China

BACKGROUND:

The Silk Road was a series of intersecting caravan trails from Southwest China to the Mediterranean, and ultimately arriving in Rome. It was more than a road where merchants exchanged goods, but was a formative and transformative rite of passage of religious and cultural heritages within the Diaspora.

Her motto is:

“Trust is the currency of the solo traveler.”

Mbale, Uganda

FINANCIALS:

We seek donations that will be applied to the production costs for the educational outreach exhibitions, lectures and documentary films for the upcoming journey through the Central Asia Silk Road region.

Support has been received from the New York Foundation for the Arts, International Institute for Peaceful Tourism and The Region Initiative to name a few.

SPONSOR:

The New York Foundation For The Arts (NYFA), is the Fiscal Sponser of the Peace Caravan Project. Marla Mossman is the Founder/Artistic Direcor

PARTNERS:

Many International Nonprofits Partners are involved with Education, Pluralism and Peaceful Tourism, including: The Sugarbaker Foundation (MO) International Institute for Peaceful Tourism (VT), The Coalition for OneVoice (NY), Josephine Hendriks Project (NY) Skal International (Spain), United Nations (NY), The Region Initiative (TRI) (Pakistan), Roza Otunbayeva Initiative (Krygytzstan). In addition, the Peace Caravan liaisons with women's groups, multicultural, humanitarian, and religious organizations and presented through educational institutions including The International Center for Ethnic Religious Mediation (ICERM) and The Peace Alliance

PROJECT SUMMARY:

Violence and modernization in the Silk Road regions threaten the indigenous way of life. Cultures are disappearing as people become more homogeneous in the 21st century. It is important to preserve what makes each unique.

Building Bridges through photography, film, and storytelling help gain empathy and appreciation for the religious and cultural heritages of these nations so that a new way to peace is revealed.

WHY THIS PROJECT MATTERS:

Precarious political situations exist in many of the Silk Road nations. Central Asia, Afghanistan, the Middle East, Pakistan and India are all involved in wars that are on the brink of escalation. Prejudice and intolerance if allowed to flourish, grows into hate, violence and war. By photographing people out of the mainstream of history, Mossman focuses on the daily lives of indigenous cultures giving voice and bearing witness to those who are most marginalized.

FOUNDER:

Marla Mossman began the Peace Caravan Project in 1996. She has made eight journeys to document the Silk Road region. Mossman has been documenting the human condition for over 25 years.

Born in Detroit, Michigan, and raised and educated in Canada, she currently resides in New York. Mossman earned a bachelors degree at the University of Western Ontario, a lower division diploma at Brooks Institute of Photography, and a diploma at Sotheby's Short Course in Decorative Arts. She founded two other Arts collectives: MMARTS and Art Soup, both of which represented artists showing work outside of traditional gallery spaces.

Mossman is the United Nations Representative for ICERM.
